Policy:

To ensure that no questions of impropriety should arise, no staff member is permitted to conduct personal financial transactions with or accept gifts of any kind (including food, etc.) from any employee. Violation of this policy could result in immediate dismissal.

Chatham Trades' employees have the right to be free from exploitation by staff and others. Chatham Trades' staff are strictly prohibited from the illegal or improper use or appropriation of an employee's personal possessions.

Staff are strictly prohibited from engaging in inappropriate romantic or sexual discussions or behaviors with or requiring the same of an employee or individual who has been an employee within the last three years.

Additionally, staff are prohibited from certain activities which involve an individual who is currently or has within the past three years been an employee of Chatham Trades, including, but not limited to engaging in business transactions or borrowing assets or properties, requesting the individual to perform tasks or services for the staff or staff's family member, or giving or receiving gifts of a substantial nature.

Any activity not related to the delivery of services by Chatham Trades that could be perceived as inappropriate including, but not limited to personal outings, overnight stays, or activity involving staff and employees not in the scope of normal business hours including evenings and weekends is strictly prohibited.

Violation of this policy will result in immediate dismissal.
